HIGHER INSTITUTES

Currently, you pay money to study. However, you will be earning money within a few years. So we aim to pass on "self-sufficient Japanese" to our students. We consider preparation for entrance exams for higher educational institutes (graduate schools, undergraduate universities and colleges, vocational schools) as a part of the Japanese language education. We will do our best to make our students pass the entrance exams for higher institutes through our courses.

GRADUATE SCHOOL

- To delve into the academic field you have pursued at undergraduate level.
- 2 years for MA/MS, 3 years for PhD

UNIVERSITY

- The first 2 years for general education and preparation courses for major subjects.
- The latter 2 years for major subjects.
- Start of a job hunting from December of the third year.

VOCATIONAL SCHOOL

- Graduation in two years.
- There are a lot of schools specializing in variety of fields such as automotive, IT system engineering, tourism, cuisine, and finance, so you can find your field of interest for sure
- Some vocational schools are transferable to universities.

EXAMINATION QUALIFICATION

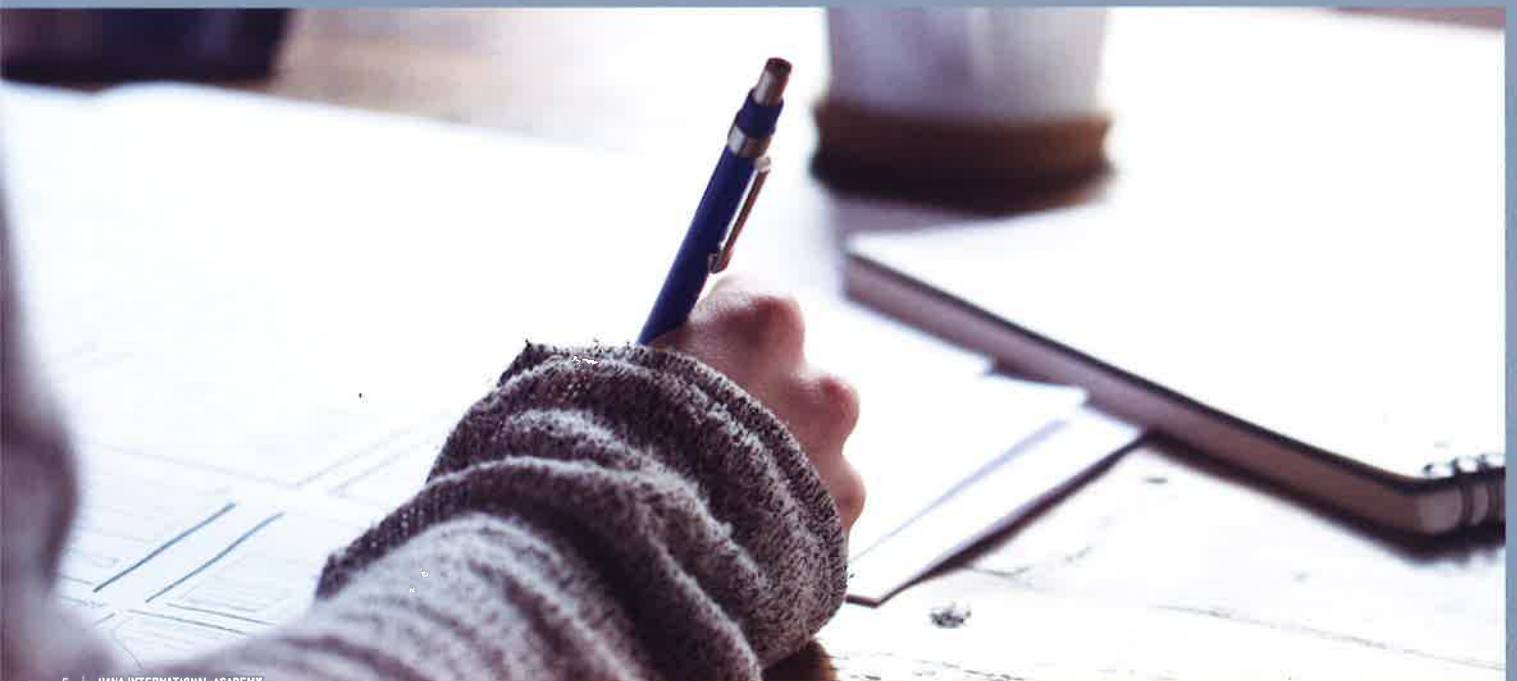

- You must have formally graduated from a college in your home country.
- The field of research must be related to academic field of your undergraduate study.
- You must have enough Japanese skills to read and understand technical books.
- You must be able to make contact with a professor to work with and write a dissertation.

EXAMINATION QUALIFICATION

- The EJU score is necessary. Make sure to take EJU.
- Which university you can apply largely depends on the score of EJU.
- Some faculties require the skills of math or English.

EXAMINATION QUALIFICATION

- Attendance rate of Japanese language school must be more than 85% .
- Japanese Language Proficiency Test N3 and higher
